

TO SUBSIDIARY DIRECTORS

Operational separation

LORE DRAFT / FICTIONAL DOCUMENT / STORY SPOILERS

PURPOSE

Maintain separate public identities across the ATLAS contractor portfolio while preserving central oversight. This memorandum is a proposed story document for NULL SECTOR.

DISTINCT IDENTITIES

Sentinel Global Solutions and Crimson Shield Security present different capabilities, insignias, and chains of command. Field personnel receive assignments through their own organization. Shared ownership is not included in routine mission briefings.

CENTRAL OVERSIGHT

Operational separation does not remove ATLAS authority over portfolio strategy. Local teams receive the scope required to complete a contract. They do not receive the full rationale behind the selection of its target.

VISUAL CONTINUITY

The Corporate Identity Office retains approval over subsidiary marks. The common geometric framework is preserved beneath separate names and colors. An observer with access to the identity directive may recognize the connection.

DISTRIBUTION

The relationship between contractor entities remains outside ordinary field circulation. Do not attach portfolio structure to an operational assignment. Rival personnel may encounter one another without knowing the interests behind their respective contracts.

DOCUMENT STATUS

Draft companion fiction derived from the creator's ATLAS lore notes and identity directive. Wording and details remain subject to story approval. This document describes fictional organizations only.
